FIRST NATIONS DEVELOPMENT FUND FACT SHEET

At AltaGas we measure our success by the social value we create and the legacy we leave. Social value is about understanding our place in the bigger picture and creating benefit beyond the bottom line. We pride ourselves in developing strong relationships with Indigenous peoples and other Indigenous communities, mindful that these relationships are important to our success.

Our objective is to develop long-term relationships and to provide sustainable benefits to the communities in which we operate.

Together, AltaGas and the Indian Business Corporation (IBC) have developed the AltaGas First Nations Development Fund to support the creation and growth of sources of revenue for Indigenous communities.

AltaGas has agreed to an interest-free $500,000 loan to IBC that will be paid in installments over the next five years since demand for IBC's lending services outstrips its capital, this funding arrangement helps to boost IBC's capacity to finance viable Indigenous entrepreneurs.

About Indian Business Corporation

Established in 1987, IBC provides financing for Indigenous peoples in Western Canada. IBC believes access to capital for Indigenous peoples provides opportunities for success and development. Since 1987 IBC has been able to provide $70 million in financing to Indigenous business initiatives.
